

LSE-UB Conference Program

Note that the program is in CEST (Central European Summer Time).

May 7

Morning

- 10 - 10h15: Introductory words
- 10h15 - 10h35: Hallamund Meena (LSE), In Defence of Manipulationism - Manipulationist Explanation in the Social Sciences
 - 10h35 - 10h45: Comment (Kate Vredenburg)
 - 10h45 - 11: Discussion
- 11 - 11h20: Jakob Ortmann (UB), Theory Roulette: Choosing that Climate Change is not a Tragedy of the Commons
 - 11h20 - 11h30: Comment (Carlos Núñez)
 - 11h30 - 11h45: Discussion

————— BREAK —————

- 12h15 - 12h35: Alicia Tahmaseb Eghbali (UB), Marx Revised: The Exploitation of Women
 - 12h35 - 12h45: Comment (Ewa Wyrębska-Dermanović)
 - 12h45 - 13: Discussion
- 13 - 13h20: Sarah Quinn (LSE), Are all plausible versions of the precautionary principle trivial?
 - 13h20 - 13h30: Comment (Jonathan Birch)
 - 13h30 - 13h45: Discussion

Afternoon

- 15 - 15h45: Invited lecture by Patricia Rich (UB), Hidden Costs of Epistemic Conformity: Lessons from Information Cascade Simulations
 - 15h45 - 16h15: Discussion

————— BREAK —————

- 16h30 - 16h50: Anna Bruvere (LSE), Is Parker (2014) successful in challenging Winsberg's (2012) argument that model-based assignments of probability to hypotheses about climate predictions are inevitably impacted by social values?
 - 16h50 - 17: Comment (Roman Frigg)
 - 17 - 17h15: Discussion
- 17h15 - 17h35: Johanna Barop (UB), Generalising Hotelling's Law
 - 17h35 - 17h45: Comment (Patricia Rich)
 - 17h45 - 18: Discussion

May 8

Morning

- 10 - 10h45: Invited lecture by Laurenz Hudetz (LSE), Should AI be interpretable?
 - 10h45 - 11h15: Discussion

————— BREAK —————

- 11h45 - 12h05: Joshua Lim (LSE), A defence of rights as side-constraints against the irrationality and saveability objections
 - 12h05 - 12h15: Comment (Campbell Brown)
 - 12h15 - 12h30: Discussion
- 12h30 - 12h50: Jonathan Michel (UB), Meat, Men and Masculinity
 - 12h50 - 13: Comment (Olivier Roy)
 - 13 - 13h15: Discussion
- 13h15 - 13h30: Closing words